

In addition to the on-line service, we'll be heading back to the sanctuary this week. It will be this service, without singing. Our guidelines for in-person worship are below. Please remember to wear your mask and bring your own copy of the bulletin. Going forward, our plan is to worship on-line as well as in the sanctuary every week. We'll be watching the virus levels as we move further into Fall and will adjust accordingly. We will make continuous improvements in the sanctuary to make it as safe as possible to gather together. But everyone should decide for themselves what works for them. The service in the sanctuary will be the on-line service delivered live, from prelude to postlude.

We will have the windows open, at least a bit, to encourage air flow, so don't worry about overheating. We have purchased a special machine to help kill the virus. We'll mark out areas to sit. So you may not be able to sit where you're used to, but you can be sure of being well separated.

While we are doing our utmost to make in person worship safer, everyone should decide for themselves what feels right. We're all feeling our way with this virus.
